Tip:

A “News Story” is something you have that isn't hosted anywhere. An example would be an article you wrote that you'd like to publicize. A “News Link” is something that already exists online.

An example would be a Purdue Today news release.

Adding News:

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL `engineering.purdue.edu/dpmanage/news/3/add/story`. The page is titled "Add News" and features a dark sidebar on the left labeled "ADMIN HUB" with various navigation options. The main content area is titled "Add News Story" and contains several form fields: "HEADLINE" (a text input), "BRIEF" (a larger text area with a placeholder "Start with a brief about the news"), "STORY" (a rich text editor with a toolbar including bold, italic, link, and source options), "DATE" (a text input with a note that it can only be edited via a date picker), and "IMAGE" (a file upload button labeled "Choose File" with the text "No file chosen"). At the bottom, there is a "Contact Information" section with a note "This section is not required" and a "CONTACT NAME" field.

ADDING A NEWS STORY:

Enter the information you have for the news story.

You have to have the following:

Headline:

The main content area is titled "Institute for a Sustainable Future News" and contains two news items:

Air conditioners that talk to each other could prevent rolling blackouts

November 3, 2022

Purdue University researchers have proposed a simple solution to potential brownouts at peak times during hot temperatures: air conditioners that talk to each other. By distributing the times at which electrical loads turn on – even by a few seconds – power grids can be much more robust against these issues, with no discernible impact to the end user.
