History
Tammy Loew briefly discussed how the Coalition is still in formation. She talked about how the group is focusing on the issues that they have in common, such as fake ids. Chris Watson commented on the success of the coalition. He also discussed the recent nightclub tragedies and assured coalition members that the area bars focus on safety.

University Consequences
Steve Akers, Office of the Dean of Students, discussed the process that Purdue University students go through when they have been in violation of alcohol laws. There is a proposed change to the University Regulations, which states that students who contribute to the illegal activity of others will fall under school jurisdiction. This will include students who provide alcoholic beverages to minors and those who provide false identification. It is important to note that students are citizens first and students second.
Fake IDs

Tammy Loew reviewed the grant to address fake ids. She displayed the first draft of the advertisement and described students’ reactions to the message.

Tammy also passed out a letter that will be sent to the Dr. Tom Robinson, requesting the University to explore putting birth dates on the student identification cards. This feature would hinder students’ use of false identification because retailers and bars could require a student ID as the second form of identification when purchasing alcohol. Coalition members were encouraged to sign the letter.

John Copeland provided an in-service training regarding Fake IDs. He suggested that retailer and bar employees write the time, date, initials of the bar, and their initials on each ID that they confiscate. This helps the excise police in their investigation. Excise provides free server training for retailers and bars.

Community Covenant

Tammy distributed the final draft of the Community Covenant for members to read. Members were encouraged to sign the Covenant.

Logo Design

Zack Toland, a graphic design student at Purdue University, displayed several possible logos for the Campus Community Bar Retail Coalition. He provided his e-mail address for additional comments. (toland@purdue.edu). In return for his hard work, Tammy Loew presented Zack with a monetary gift supplied by John Livengood of the Indiana Beverage Retailers Association.

Drunk Driving

Matt Clawson from CATS announced that he is working on writing a grant from the Department of Education that will address high-risk drinking, drunk driving, and alcohol-related violence around campus and in the community. The grant will target the 65% of students who live off-campus because this population must arrange transportation when they are drinking. The grant will develop media campaigns, designated driver programs, and increased server training. He asked for input and suggestions from coalition members.

Next Meeting

The next meeting will be in early April.
