Meeting Notes

Jason Dombkowski, West Lafayette Police Department:

Chief Dombkowski talked about New Year’s Eve and how the West Lafayette Police did not encounter any problems this year. He especially singled out the Neon Cactus for their efforts to create a safe environment on that night. Overall, they have seen a decrease in public intoxication arrests, and they are still hoping to install some barriers to keep the Village area more safe. The police department will continue to work with taxi cab companies for desired pick up sites in the Village.

John Cox, Purdue Police Department:

Chief Cox discussed the partnership and collaboration with the West Lafayette Police, campus groups, and some of the West Lafayette establishments. He encouraged attendees to contact him as a resource. He mentioned some of the initiatives his department is addressing, such as safety at pedestrian crosswalks. Purdue Police are developing a web page for parents that will be linked off of the Purdue Police site: www.purdue.edu/pupd.

John Copeland, Indiana State Excise Police:

Sergeant Copeland said that they saw a decrease in arrests during this past football season. Relating to fake IDs, they expect to see an increase in fake IDs after spring break. There is also an increase in fake IDs for 16-17 year olds to purchase tobacco. Mandatory server training will begin during this year, and the final details are still being developed. Excise officers investigate criminal investigations as well as underage drinking, and are working to get to know the doormen, retail owners, and employees at area establishments.

Billy Buckles:

Billy is a recent Purdue graduate who is researching the possibility of starting a late-night bus service Thursday through Saturday that will deliver people to area apartment complexes. He received constructive feedback from attendees and will continue to update the group on his progress.

Tammy Loew, Student Wellness Office:

Tammy thanked Chief Dombkowski for agreeing to co-facilitate the Bar Coalition. She also talked about alcohol legislation that is being introduced during this session. There are two bills increasing the alcohol tax and a few bills addressing various alcohol-related issues. She also discussed the magnet project, a collaborative effort with West Lafayette Police to deliver over 8,000 magnets to residents in area apartment complexes. The Student Wellness Office received positive feedback from conversations with apartment managers about a decrease in party-like behavior as well as a decrease in police calls. The attendees discussed the possibility of more partnerships with the apartment complexes to create a safer environment for their residents.

Harry Mize:

Harry is a local citizen who works as an advocate to promote safe driving. In 1992, he drove while intoxicated and crashed his car. Since that time, he has been temporarily disabled and is in a wheelchair. Harry offered his services to area bars to promote a safe environment. Harry can be reached through Dan Towery at 765-490-0197.
