

Loran Carleton Parker

Loran is the Assessment Specialist at the Discovery Learning Research Center. Her specialties include qualitative research and evaluation methods and educational research and evaluation of informal learning contexts. Loran joined the center's evaluation and assessment team in 2009 after completing her doctorate in Science Education at Purdue University. During her graduate studies, Loran was the Assessment Director for two programs focused on science teacher education; for her dissertation work she studied the dynamics of family learning during visits to a zoo. Loran also holds an M.S.Ed. degree in Science Education and a B.S. degree in Atmospheric Chemistry from Purdue University.