Gebisa Ejeta is Distinguished Professor of Plant Breeding & Genetics and International Agriculture and serves as Executive Director of the Center for Global Food Security at Purdue University. Professor Ejeta has been a member of the faculty of Purdue University since 1984. His career has been devoted to education, research, and international development with contributions in human and institutional capacity building, in technology development and transfer, as well as in advocacy for science in support of the cause of the poor.

Professor Ejeta has served in advisory roles to several international development agencies. He currently serves on the boards of the Consultative Group for International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) Consortium, the Sasakawa Africa Association, and the Chicago Council for Global Affairs Global Agricultural Development Initiative (GADI).

Professor Ejeta is the 2009 World Food Prize Laureate and a recipient of a national medal of honor from the President of Ethiopia. He is a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Sciences, the American Society of Agronomy, and the Crop Science Society of America.

Professor Ejeta has served the United States Government in several capacities, including as Special Advisor to the USAID Administrator Dr. Rajiv Shah, as Science Envoy of the U.S. State Department, and was appointed by President Obama as member of the Board for International Food and Agricultural Development (BIFAD) in 2010.