OIGP Social Justice Seminar Series

What is Social Justice?

A Program of events coordinated between the Office of Interdisciplinary Graduate Programs (OIGP) and the School of Interdisciplinary Studies (SIS)

Friday, April 22, 2016

In a time of political urgency around social justice issues like environmental sustainability, food security, immigration and migration, gender and racial justice, economic inequality, police violence, and runaway costs for education, this forum seeks to develop useful ideas and perspectives towards interventions and solutions. We will pay special attention to the role scholars, teachers, and students can play in developing new ideas and methods for intervening in important arenas of social need. We will also discuss the way the social location of people involved in social justice work can advance, or challenge, their ability to achieve results.

9:00-11:00 a.m. International Panel Discussion
What is Social Justice?
Live Stream with Universidad Nacional de Colombia in Bogotá focusing on the theme: What is Social Justice?
Location: PFEN– 241 (Dean’s Auditorium)

12:00-2:00 p.m. Social Justice and Art Workshop
Sign up directly via email: studio@gardensandmachines.com
Deadline: April 15th at Noon
Location: FPRD 204

3:00-5:00 p.m. IGP 3MT (Three-minute Thesis) Competition
Interdisciplinary Graduate Program representatives will participate in this competition.
Location: DLRC 131/134

5:00-7:00 p.m. Reception
Location: DLRC 131/134

7:00-10:00 p.m. Rodolfo Ramirez
Screening of “Lo que la tierra no perdona” (The Unforgiving Land)
Location: DLRC 131/134

RSVP: https://goo.gl/4TgHNI