Ronald McDonald House
The primary mission of the Ronald McDonald House of Indiana is to provide a supportive home-away-from-home for families of seriously ill or injured children receiving medical treatment at Indianapolis-area hospitals, primarily Riley Hospital for Children at Indiana University Health. The Ronald McDonald House of Indiana consists of two locations with distinct functions to meet the varying needs of the families they serve. Both locations include living areas, kitchens, quiet rooms for conversation or contemplation, laundry rooms, showers and places where families can nap when needed. Most importantly, families are just moments from their hospitalized children.

Riley Cheer Guild
Riley Cheer Guild is a volunteer auxiliary that serves Riley Hospital for Children at IU Health, IU Health University Hospital and IU Health Melvin and Bren Simon Cancer Center by providing comfort and cheer to patients and families at these hospitals.
