PSY 390 Research Opportunity for Spring 2018
Arriagnew Research on Close Connections (ARCC)

Faculty member & graduate student

Dr. Ximena Arriaga (faculty member)

Description of research area

My research examines romantic relationships: what makes them work, and how they affect each person. Specific topics include: interpersonal and attachment security, managing aggressive relationships, and regulating doubt and uncertainty.

Description of undergraduate participation

Research assistants primarily will be involved in running a study with couples. They also will do readings on the research areas described above and other research tasks, and they will present a published article to the research group.

Many research activities will occur during weekday evenings and on weekend. Also, there is a weekly meeting on Fridays, 2:30 – 4:00, that is required.

Research Setting

Purdue campus, and possibly community areas.

Contact Information

Dr. Ximena Arriaga, arriaga@purdue.edu
If interested, please contact me for an application.

Additional Information

I am particularly interested in students who want to learn more about pursuing a career doing research in psychology. Interested students will be screened through the application process. Sophomores with a GPA of 3.0 or higher are especially encouraged to apply.