PSY 390 Research Opportunity – Fall 2016

Faculty member
Dr. Rong Su

Graduate student
Nicole Schulz

Description of research topics
We conduct research on a broad range of topics in industrial-organizational psychology. For the Fall 2016 semester, we are recruiting research assistants to work on projects related to the following topics:

- Interests and motivation in education and workplace
- Psychological assessments of interests and personality
- Gender, diversity, and work-family issues in organizations

Interested students may read more about the lab’s research on our website: www.rongsu.org

Description of undergraduate participation
Our undergraduate assistants may engage in a variety of research & learning activities, including development of psychological assessments, online survey design and management, data collection, data coding, and literature review.

Research setting
Students can complete work in their own location but are expected to attend weekly lab meetings.

Number of assistants needed
2-4

Contact information
Contact Nicole Schulz at: interestlab@gmail.com

Additional comments
Interested students should send a copy of their resume/curriculum vitae to the above email address. Candidates will be interviewed. Preference will be given to students with strong academic potential and interest in research.