PSY 390 Research Opportunity – Spring 2016

Faculty member
Dr. Rong Su

Graduate student
Nichole Schulz

Description of reading topics
We conduct research on a broad range of topics in organizational psychology, including individual differences (interests and personality) and assessment, gender and diversity in organizations, and organizational culture and climate. Our research answers the questions: what makes individuals attracted to certain workplace and successful in their jobs, and what can organizations do to make the workplace a better “fit” for their employees?

Description of undergraduate participation
Our undergraduate assistants will take part in a variety of research and learning activities, including the development of psychological and organizational assessments, online survey design and management, data collection, data coding, and literature review.

Research setting
Survey and online research. Students are also expected to attend group lab meetings.

Number of assistants needed
2-3

Contact information
Contact Nichole Schulz at: schulzn@purdue.edu

Additional comments
Interested students should send a copy of their resume to Nicole. Select candidates will be sent an application and a screening task, which involves reading and summarizing a short empirical article that will be provided. Students will be selected based on a demonstrated ability to summarize and describe key findings from the designated article.