Compton Graduate Student Research Methods Training or Professional Development Award
College of Health and Human Sciences

The purpose of this award is to provide small stipends to support graduate students from the College of Health and Human Sciences for training in research methods beyond the courses offered at Purdue University that will enhance their dissertation research or to attend a workshop/conference focused on professional development. The award is in honor of Dr. Norma Compton’s 14 year service as the Dean of the School of Consumer and Family Science. The Compton Student Research Methods Training or Professional Development Award is open to doctorate level Health and Human Sciences graduate students involved in research under the guidance of faculty in the college of Health and Human Sciences. Each recipient will receive an award to cover up to $500 of expenses.

Eligibility

Any graduate students involved in research and under the direction of a faculty in the college of Health and Human Sciences who is attending a research methods training or professional development workshop may apply if she/he meets the following eligibility requirements:

1. Applicants must be enrolled in a degree-seeking program at Purdue University to be considered for this award.
2. The research methods must be directly related to the work in the Health and Human Sciences faculty members laboratory.
3. Applicants may only submit for one opportunity per competition. Award money may only be applied towards the stated goals. Priority will be given to students not previously funded by a Compton award.

Deadline

Applications will be considered two times a year with application dues dates of October 6; March 15. The dates of the workshop should be not more than 6 months before and not more than 6 months after the due date of the application.

Application

An electronic copy of the application should be submitted as a single document to the Graduate Program Director of your department/unit for the college level review by the Graduate Education Policy and Curriculum Committee.

Awardee Responsibilities

Should you be awarded a Health and Human Sciences Research Methods Training or Professional Development Award, you will be required to provide documentation of your travel in the form of receipts for travel (airline, gas, rental car, etc.), and, if possible, a picture of you at the conference. In addition, you will be asked to sign a waiver so that your picture can be used for the purpose of promoting the research in the college, or of the program, as well as to submit a paragraph summarizing what you experienced at the conference and what you gained by your participation.
