Dear Parents,

Your child’s class is scheduled to attend ArcAttack: Energy and Electricity on November 13, 2016 at 10:00 am at Loeb Playhouse on the campus of Purdue University.

ArcAttack: Energy and Electricity
Famous for their appearance on America’s Got Talent, ArcAttack plays rock and roll music while creating lightning with a Tesla coil! In an electrifying show unlike anything students have ever seen, ArcAttack will take students on an interactive journey of discovery where they will learn the science behind the amazing show they see on stage. Each member of ArcAttack has a deep and thorough knowledge of science and technology.

The ensemble—led by an engineer, an electrician, an audio engineer, and a science teacher—creates everything students see on stage from scratch in the ArcAttack workshop. The material is presented in a completely accessible and interactive manner that’s guaranteed to keep students talking well beyond the end of the show!

Purdue Convocations student matinees are reserved for students and their teachers. To learn more about ArcAttack: Energy and Electricity, or to purchase tickets to the public performance of this production, please visit: convocations.org.

With support from: