EPoC Meeting Notes from March 10, 2022

Without a formal program this was a great meeting with discussion of resources available particularly for mentoring of minority students for recruitment and retention, see the notes form the chat for many of these resources. Chris Clifton started the meeting inviting everyone to a faculty candidate seminar focused on "Building Accountable and Trustworthy Natural Language Processing: On Social Bias Detection and Mitigation."

Chris is also looking for more information on how to recruit minority students to the Computer Science Alliance. He was refereed to David Goldberg's presentation last month concerning the Math Alliance. Many other resources were discussed and links were provided in the chat. Umit suggested the Women in Cyber Security chapter at Purdue. Toni discussed the Emerging Leaders' program for undergraduate minorities may be a great place to recruit grad students. Aletha mention the College of Science is working with faculty to help them be better mentors to Emerging Leaders. This is done using workshops on specific topics and discussions of what faculty and students need. Christopher Munt's workshops also may be applicable. Tasha shared sites in the chat for mentoring.

Application: https://www.aacu.org/institutes/2022-trht-campus-centers/2022-institute-on-truth-racial-healing-transformation-trht-campus-centers-apply

Thanks Misty & Helen for bringing up the opportunity to enroll an institutional team in the AAC&U institute to explore creating a Truth and Reconciliation Center on one's campus. I have privately wondered for a while if Purdue is ready for this; I bet some ECoP members are! Speaking only for myself, I could certainly build a theoretical case that with Indiana's history of being a home for known hate groups and with West Lafayette's status as a former "sundown town," that a little T&R work could be a good idea. It fits with Purdue's equity initiatives and its land grant mission. It would be a big project!

Outcomes of the institute are supposed to be that

Campus Team Outcomes

    Develop a comprehensive action plan
    Design and participate in Rx Racial Healing® Circles
    Become a part of the growing, national TRHT Campus Centers network
    Become eligible to host a TRHT Campus Center

- From Katherine

Thank you all for the great resources!

She would be great!

Take care everyone!
