

Homework Problem 10.A

Given: Rigid member AO is supported at O with a ball-and-socket joint, and by cables AB and EC at locations A and E on the member. This structure in turn supports block D having a weight of W . Assume the weight of the member to be negligible compared to the applied load.

Find: Determine the tensions in cables AB and EC. Express your answers in terms of W .

