Ailin Fei is the epitome of what it means to be an exceptional student leader. She is a communication expert, a visionary leader, a dedicated problem solver, and an outstanding team player.

As the graduate advisor for Steps to Leaps Students, she has been doing remarkable work with undergraduate students, mentoring them to become leaders in their own right. She is the "brains behind the operation" (quoted by Roger Stewart himself) of the Roger C. Stewart Leadership & Professional Development Department, helping countless students learn, experience, advocate, and discover their strengths and interests to achieve their full potential.

Ailin is also an active advocate for graduate students. As the Chief of Staff for the Purdue Graduate Student Government (PGSG), Ailin is involved in all aspects of the graduate student government process, providing support to the executive board, and ensuring the internal organization functions accordingly.

Moreover, she served as the HTM Graduate Student Association Vice President and PGSG HTM Senator. She authored and passed legislation that provides language support to international students at Purdue.

She organized over 50 successful events on campus, bringing students together and fostering a sense of community. We are proud to recognize Ailin for her incredible achievements and applaud her for her unwavering dedication to student leadership.

Awesome job, Ailin!
