KEHINDE AYANO

PURDUE GRADUATE STUDENT

Major: Ph.D. Computer Information and Technology

Home Country: Nigeria

My research focuses on detection of malware in encrypted network traffic using deep learning technique.

Why did you choose Purdue?

Purdue is one of the top 10 most innovative universities in the US.

Where do you spend most of your time on campus?

I spend most of my time in the classroom reading and at the graduate school where I work as a graduate assistant.

How did you decide what to study?

My decision to study Computer and Information Technology is informed by my passion for computing and job prospects in this field.

What was your process for selecting a graduate school?

My career goal is to work in industry, and this forms the basis for my graduate school selection. I researched various degree programs and options in my area of study and then narrowed it down to the one that suited my career goal. I also considered availability of funding for such an option and networked with faculty in those fields.

How did you decide where to live?

Though distance from school is not usually an issue as you can connect with City Bus and ride to school from anywhere. My preference is to live in an area where I can walk to campus. I was able to find a place close to school using property management websites.

What's one thing prospective students from Nigeria should know about Purdue?

Purdue is rich in cultural diversity. It offers a very friendly and welcoming environment, with both faculty and students always eager to help.

How do you keep yourself organized?

I prioritize my activities based on importance and deadlines. I have a diary where I document my schedule, and I also set reminders.

What are you hoping to do after you graduate from Purdue?

I hope to start my optional practical training (OPT) in one of the leading Tech companies.

What is your favorite fact about Purdue?

Purdue university airport is the first university-owned airport in the US.

Purdue Airport, located on the outskirt of campus
