

OUTSTANDING YOUNG ALUMNI AWARD
SCHOOL OF HEALTH SCIENCES
PURDUE UNIVERSITY

Purpose

The Outstanding Young Alumni Award recognizes a graduate of the School of Health Sciences for significant contributions to his or her profession, career achievements, or contributions to society through public service or other community activities.

Nominations

Any faculty, staff, students, or graduates of the School of Health Sciences may submit a nomination for this award.

Eligibility Requirements

The nominee must have graduated from Purdue University with a graduate or undergraduate degree in the School of Health Sciences and be under thirty-five (35) years of age on September 1 of the year preceding the date of the award.

Selection Criteria

The nominee must have achieved a noteworthy level of success based upon the criteria below.

- A demonstrated record of significant achievements in his/her chosen profession. The ability to serve as a role model for young alumni and current undergraduate students in the pursuit of their profession is a strong element for consideration.
- Significant early career achievements and the potential for future achievement.
- A demonstrated commitment to their profession through active participation and leadership in activities of professional organizations.
- Demonstrated service to Purdue University or the School of Health Sciences.
- Participated in leadership roles within the community.

Nomination Requirements

The nomination information should include as a minimum:

1. A complete curriculum vitae (CV) that clearly summarizes the nominee's career path and accomplishments.
2. A formal letter of nomination describing the rationale for the nomination using the above criteria, if relevant. This letter should supplement the information contained in the CV and provide ample justification that this individual should be recognized for outstanding achievement, leadership, or service in comparison with professional peers.
