ADDITIONAL RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

Marquette University Milwaukee, Wisconsin

Dissertation

May 2015 – Oct. 2016

Title: Heterosexual allies' confrontation of sexual prejudice: The effect of gender, attitudes, and past allied behavior

Aim: To examine how gender of a non-target witness, perpetrator, and target of sexual prejudice may affect participant's responses to witnessing heterosexist prejudice, using a 10-condition in vivo experimental design. Additionally, the study examined factors that predict confrontation behavior including previous allied behaviors and attitudes about gender, society, and the LGBT population. Satisfaction with behavioral responses and anticipated future responses to witnessing prejudice were also examined. (over 450 participants)

- Primary responsibilities include developing the research design, obtaining human subjects approval, training and supervising research assistants, participant recruitment, developing a coding scheme for video data, data analysis and interpretation, and manuscript preparation

Sexuality and Gender Diversity Lab

Jan. 2015 – Jan. 2016

Position: Graduate Research Assistant

Principle Investigator: Nicholas Heck, Ph.D.

- Co-develop experimental research projects examining how LGBTQ teens and young adults experience minority stress; compose IRB protocols; train and supervise junior graduate student and undergraduate students

Doctoral Qualifying Exam

Dec. 2014

Title: Sexual prejudice and discrimination, reduction, and the role of heterosexual allies

Chair: Debra L. Oswald, Ph.D.

Aim: To comprehensively and critically explore manifestations and consequences of sexual prejudice, methods of prejudice reduction, and identity role development of heterosexual allies

Master's Thesis

Mar. 2012 - May 2014

Title: Who confronts sexual prejudice? How gender and ideologies are related to heterosexual allies challenging hate speech

Aim: Utilized a 10-condition experimental design using video manipulations and 2 pilot studies to examine possible gender differences and attitudes related to non-targets' intended responses to witnessing sexual prejudice (over 350 participants).

Kelly L. LeMaire, Ph.D.

- Primary responsibilities included developing the research design, obtaining human subjects approval, training and supervising research assistants, participant recruitment, data analysis and interpretation, and manuscript preparation

Inequality and Stereotyping Lab

Aug. 2011 – May 2015

Position: Graduate Research Assistant

Principle Investigator: Debra L. Oswald, Ph.D.

- Co-develop and conduct research projects; mentor, supervise, and train undergraduate research assistants, including supervising and developing undergraduate student's individual research projects; hold independent research lab meetings; compose IRB protocols

Loyola University

Chicago, Illinois

Emerging Adulthood and College Student Mental Health Lab

May 2009 - May 2010

Position: Research Assistant

Principle Investigator: Colleen S. Conley, Ph.D.

Pro-social Behavior Lab

Jan. 2009 - May 2009

Position: Research Assistant

Principle Investigator: Fred Bryant, Ph.D., Samuel Cole, Ph.D.

Autism Spectrum Disorders Lab

Aug. 2007 - Apr. 2008

Position: Research Assistant

Principle Investigator: Denise Davidson, Ph.D., Dina Tell, Ph.D.
