

Hamilton Co. Master Gardeners present.....

“Creating Nature in the Burbs”

September 23, 2017

at the Hamilton Co. 4H Fairgrounds, Noblesville, IN

Doors open at 8:15 am

Seminar 9:00 am - 3:15 pm

Look at mixing natives with your Iris; supporting and understanding pollinators; smart and healthy garden maintenance techniques, and proper heirloom seed saving and exchange.

Anna Brook “Natives in the Suburban Landscape” This presentation will challenge gardeners to reevaluate their definition and expectation of a native landscape, especially in relation to a suburban setting.

Bill McKnight “Gardening with Limitations” All Gardeners face limitations (e.g., space, time, money, habitat, ordinances, easements, physical ability, knowledge...). A discussion of these and other gardening related topics.

Ben Cohen “Building a Sustainable Seed Community” Ben presents basic and intermediate seed saving techniques plus addressing community seed sharing – making it fun for the whole family.

John Scott Foster “The Delicate Dance between Plant and Pollinator” An exploration of the relationship between pollinators and plants and how we can improve our gardening techniques for pollinator support. His alternate title for this presentation is “Wild Sex in the Garden”.

For more information go to HCMGA.org

REGISTRATION

Open to the public. Registration fee $40.00 (make check payable to HCMGA)

Name _____ Phone Number _____

Address _____ City, State _____

Email address _____ If MG, County _____

Mail this and your check to: HCMGA/Purdue Extension, 2003 Pleasant Street, Noblesville, IN 46060

(must be postmarked by 9/14/17)

Please list any special dietary needs.
