The Mansion was originally the State of Connecticut building at the 1904 St. Louis World's Fair. It was dismantled and moved to Lafayette, Indiana, immediately after the Fair by Mr. and Mrs. William Potter and became their personal residence.

When Bob and Ellie Haan bought the property, they started acquiring historic American art furniture as well as Indiana paintings and potteries to decorate the house. Over the years they built an exceptionally fine art collection, which they donated in 2015 along with the mansion to the newly created Haan Museum.
