Welcome

In providing a guide to arts events at Purdue, this new section celebrates both the contributions to the campus and community by its seven sponsoring units and the way art expresses and fulfills human needs.

The guide, too, is an invitation, as suggested by its title: “Enjoy. Explore. Indulge.”

Enjoy the richness of thought and feeling, the stimulation and provocation of the creative process.

Explore eternal and circumstantial issues of human existence and relationship.

Indulge in the pleasures of ear and eye — and maybe other senses — as a vehicle to new awareness and experience.

The West Lafayette campus is fortunate to have a wide range of art performances and showings at a high level. Students display talent, energy, dedication and their fresh perspectives. On-campus professionals, both faculty and staff, create the conditions for excellence. Guest artists come frequently. Convocations fills its unique role by bringing a variety of professional acts.

The outcome is an ongoing arts fest consisting of vocal and instrumental music, comedy and drama, dance, visual arts of many genres, and exposure to arts from other lands.

These opportunities may search deeply into serious issues, or they may lighten the spirit with fun — or do both. Above all, they connect the elements of our sometimes fragmented lives and offer new confirmation of what it is like to be human.

John Ruskin, the 19th century English critic and artist, wrote, “Fine art is that in which the hand, the head and the heart go together.”

Purdue Convocations

Initiated in 1902, Purdue Convocations is among the oldest collegiate performing arts presenters in the United States. Each year, Convocations offers the region 30-40 performances of widely varying genres: Broadway-style shows, theatre, dance, children's theatre, world music, jazz, and chamber music, along with rock, pop, country, and comedy attractions.

For collegiate students, Curricular Connections integrates artists into the classroom at both Purdue University and Ivy Tech Community College, including artist residencies in the classroom, master classes in specialized fields, and the opportunity to attend performances with a $10 subsidized ticket when faculty members connect performances to the curriculum.

Questions about the Curricular Connections program? For more information, contact Stacey Mickelbart at 49-49071 or smickelb@purdue.edu.

Purdue Bands & Orchestras

Students who are as passionate about their music as they are about pursuing careers in science, engineering, technology or the liberal arts make Purdue Bands & Orchestras special. Led by Jay S. Gephart, the department is known for its "All-American" Marching Band, jazz bands, symphony orchestras, concert bands, chamber ensembles and pep bands.

Purdue draws tremendously dedicated and talented student musicians. Not having to compete with music majors and minors, students can freely pursue their musical dreams while mastering the skills that will shape their career. That we can boast of having four different jazz bands, five concert bands and two unique orchestras speaks to the intense interest in music making on campus.

Although no music performance majors or minors are offered, performing ensembles offered by Purdue Bands & Orchestras are structured as credit classes. Nearly 700 students participate each semester. In six of the past seven years, a musician from Purdue Bands & Orchestras has been selected, through a campus-wide competition, to receive the prestigious Sudler Prize as Purdue's top senior in the arts.

To make our music accessible to everyone, admission to all regular concerts is free. Each semester offers 10 or more free events.

Purdue Musical Organizations

For more than 75 years, Purdue Musical Organizations (PMO) has proudly served the Purdue University family and the Greater Lafayette community as ambassadors of goodwill on campus, across the country, and around the world.

Under the direction of William E. Griffel, PMO offers five vocal music ensembles as well as a handbell choir. Each year, PMO provides students with hundreds of opportunities to perform, $85,000 in scholarship aid and worldwide travel opportunities.

The nationally acclaimed Purdue Christmas Show is presented annually to a live crowd of thousands and reaches millions more through international broadcasts on public television and radio networks. The production features the talent of 150 student performers and 20 children from Greater Lafayette.

Variety is a PMO trademark with performances offering a wide range of music and entertainment. Since its founding in 1933, PMO has strived to provide the highest quality musical entertainment for audiences. However, PMO's most important goal is to provide a program for students to learn, perform, and grow together.

Purdue Theatre

The Division of Theatre consists of an undergraduate program, a graduate program leading to the master of fine arts degree, and a production program, which is known as Purdue Theatre and serves as a laboratory for the whole division. The undergraduate program supports the broad-based liberal arts education of the bachelor of art degree candidates. The graduate program offers specialized academic training. Productions serve as a major cultural resource for the University as a whole and for the Lafayette-West Lafayette community.

“The 2009-10 Purdue Theatre season is one of contrasts: three great classics, three styles of comedy, three acclaimed tragedies,” says Richard Stockton Rand, chair of the Division of Theatre. “We will take you on a journey geographical, historical and theatrical — from the swelter of New Orleans to the Northern Lights of Almost, Maine; from the ramparts of Elsinore to the Italian marketplace; from a Norwegian drawing room to an unprecedented dinner with five females from foreign lands. We will bring you dreams and ghosts, visions and memories, irrepressible attraction and obsessive destruction, romantic comedy and rollicking farce, and some of the greatest roles and plays in the canon of dramatic literature.”

Purdue Repertory Dance Company

The Purdue Repertory Dance Company (PRDC) is the resident dance ensemble in the Patti and Rusty Rueff School of Visual and Performing Arts Division of Dance.

PRDC showcases choreography by faculty, guest artists, and students focusing on the creation of new contemporary dance works. PRDC performs semiannual concerts in the Nancy T. Hansen Theatre in Pao Hall as well as various local venues. The company has frequently been selected by national adjudicators to perform in both regional and national American College Dance Festival "Gala" performances.

The Division of Dance, chaired by professor Carol Cunningham-Sigman, also produces numerous concerts and dance showings in the 100-seat Dance Studio Theatre in Pao Hall. The productions feature student choreography, dance improvisation as performance concerts in addition to interdisciplinary projects between the dance program and the divisions of Art & Design and Theatre.

The Division of Dance offers courses in modern dance, ballet, jazz, world dance, improvisation, choreography, and dance appreciation. Students may choose a minor in dance or select courses to fulfill the aesthetic awareness core curriculum requirement for the College of Liberal Arts.

For more information, contact the Division of Dance office at 49-45993.

Purdue University Galleries

Purdue Galleries presents a variety of art forms and exhibits throughout the year. The Ringel and Stewart Center galleries feature artwork from regional, national and international artists and the permanent collection. These exhibits rotate every six weeks through the school year.

Galleries exhibits provide opportunities for educational sessions, ranging from participatory art and poetry sessions to lectures by the artists and those knowledgeable in the development and historical, cultural and artistic significance of the artwork on display.

The permanent collection's 5,200 objects include 3,000 historic to contemporary prints, photographs, and works on paper; Art of the Americas, including Native American baskets, Pre-Columbian textiles and ceramics; and paintings, drawings and prints by the Mexican Modernists.

All Galleries exhibitions and events are free and open to the public.

Purdue Galleries staff: Craig Martin, director; Mary Ann Anderson, assistant to the director; Michal Hathaway, assistant director for facilities and collections. For more information, contact Mary Ann Anderson at galleries@purdue.edu or 49-67899.

Black Cultural Center

The Black Cultural Center provides purposeful, holistic, scholarly and co-curricular programming designed to strengthen understanding of African American heritage. It enhances the academic, cultural and social development of the entire Purdue community.

Cultural Arts Series

The BCC is actively engaged in the academic life of the University through the presentation of the Cultural Arts Series. The series is presented throughout the academic year and highlights those who have contributed extensively to human rights, business and education. Students and visitors enjoy a full calendar of events including guest lectures, workshops, seminars and other activities.

Art Collection

The permanent BCC art collection comprises more than 100 pieces of authentic African artifacts such as woodcarvings, masks, ceremonial pieces and original artwork by African and African American artists. The BCC offers educational tours that include descriptions of these artifacts and the architecture of the facility.

Ensembles

The cultural center sponsors four performing arts ensembles (creative writing, dance, drama choral music) and an academic service-based ensemble. Each ensemble is led by a professional artist/scholar and open to all Purdue students and community members.

To learn more about the Black Cultural Center, visit www.purdue.edu/bcc or call 494-3091.
