Resources on campus
Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS)
If you need someone to talk to, CAPS is an excellent source of support and resources. If it’s your first time taking advantage of these services, you must attend walk-in hours, which can be found on the CAPS website. Did you know that all graduate students have access to free sessions ranging from individual counseling to group therapy sessions?!
As a reminder, you can always contact one of the GMP Leadership Team (LT) members if you need help finding appropriate resources on campus. Emma: ebrace@purdue.edu, Catherine: cberdanier@purdue.edu, Natascha: ntrellin@purdue.edu, Jinsha: li1508@purdue.edu, Nimisha: bajaj0@purdue.edu, Michelle: vuenm@purdue.edu, and Angie: amugenda@purdue.edu
Weekly Special Features

Tiny Hamster Eating Tiny Food!

Last week’s feature with resources on implicit bias was hopefully very thought-provoking, but we’re going to take a break this week with some animal videos! Tiny Hamster and his friends are treated very well by their owners and fed tiny burritos, barbecue, Thanksgiving dinner, birthday cake and more. Take a break and enjoy the entire playlist to see some intricate small-scale food styling as well as some adorable animals having parties and eating tiny food!

Check the videos out here!
